About Us

BOILER PLATE

As one of America's oldest trade associations, GBCA advances commercial construction in the Philadelphia region by serving as a powerful voice, an industry watchdog, and a critical resource. Established in 1891, GBCA is the Philadelphia chapter of the Associated General Contractors of America (AGC). GBCA provides more than 325 member companies with access to proven advocacy, networking opportunities, safety services, education, and training programs.

OUR STORY

Our Story

HISTORY

Established in 1891, as one of America's oldest trade associations we advance commercial construction in the Philadelphia region. The Carpenters' Company was established 1724. Comprised primarily of craftsmen from England, they were our original master builders. They brought with them a very long lineage of traditions rooted in the ancient trade guilds.

Some of the group of craftsmen in Philadelphia were both master builders and business owners, and resemble modern-day contractors. By 1891 a group of carpenters members broke off from the Carpenters' Company and formed the Master Carpenters & Builders Association. Over time, the master builder became the general contractor, the general contractor began to sub-contract to various trades. The organization became more comprised of very specific professions.

By 1943, they settled in center city Philadelphia and became the General Building Contractors Association. The General Building Contractors Association came together to become a collective bargaining unit. Over time the association evolved into a full-service association focusing on the communication of best practices, safety and education training, networking for members, and promoting the industry on a new level.
